Member trip to the Figge Museum in Davenport

Click here to contact us by e-mail

Dear Friends,

Already the Holidays! Let us hope that the lessons taught of love and peace sink deep into all of our psyches, and that we can work together to create a safer, more beautiful world for everyone.

At the Center we offer many of our events, exhibits and programs free to the public, as we want the arts in all forms to be accessible to all people. As you know, we often have a donation jar available, but that covers only a very small part of our annual financial needs. We don't want to always be asking for assistance, so we have only one major time each year chosen for our annual appeal. Soon, you may receive our annual photo collage, and a request for support. Please be generous. We couldn't do all this without your help, both financial and in volunteer hours. You can also donate online, here: Donate

We have been thrilled with the enthusiasm and feedback we have received for our monthly table reading series. December's table reading Greetings is a play that I first fell in love with in the 1990s and always wanted to direct. I hope you'll attend, and help us to decide if we should create a full production of it some holiday season. I think you will love it.

In gratitude for all that we share,

Carole

Figge Museum Member Trip

We had a great time on the member trip to the Figge Museum in Davenport and the Old City Gallery in Maquoketa. It was exciting to see several of our regional artists displayed at the Figge. We admired "What are You Waiting For" by Maureen Bardusk (which we could say we exhibited first at our Broad Ideas exhibit last Spring!), as well as artwork by Gail Chavenelle, Gerry Podraza, and Elizabeth Boggess. We are so proud of these wonderful artists.

Art of the Native Peoples through January 13, 2019

When we started learning about the native culture in preparation for this exhibit we learned that traditionally Native Americans did not think of their beautifully crafted pottery, beadwork, or birchbark as art. Many pieces were made for ceremonial purposes, not decor, as we may now use them in our homes. We suggested finding native words to describe "art". There were none. We have included a chart for the symbolism and artists statements to better understand this magnificent work. Don't miss spending some time to read the process and the statement these artists are presenting. Many pieces are for sale.

Regional Artists Gallery

We love the diversity of art in this gallery. Currently we have some amazing needle felted pieces, stained glass mosaic, basketry and a rain stick inspired by Native American culture, a beautiful clay sculpture of a native woman with her papoose, and a fanciful iron sculpture of a figure with mirrors. Unique, one of a kind artwork, only available here!

Feature Gallery

We have been extremely fortunate to receive a donation from Sidney Miller of a number of paintings by the late Albert W Miller, which will be displayed in our feature gallery starting on December 1. Al and his wife Sidney lived in Galena for many years. A gifted and successful artist, he studied in Indiana and Illinois, along with Europe. He taught art, ran an advertising and public relations firm, and designed many homes. All in addition to the myriad of intriguing paintings he created throughout his lifetime. Many of the pieces we recently acquired are portraits of Galenians. Come see our friends—young and old.

Galena Territory Holiday Housewalk
Saturday, December 1, 10 am - 4 pm

We send a resounding thank-you to Kathy Johnson, who has designated the Galena Center for the Arts to be her charity for donations from the Galena Territory Housewalk. The Holiday Housewalk features five homes in The Galena Territory decked out for the holidays. For the first time, the Holiday Housewalk will join forces with the Holiday Market to present a full day of fun and philanthropy.

Gather up your friends and family on Dec. 1 and make your first stop the Galena Territory Association Owners' Club, 2000 Territory Drive. Take some time to shop for gifts in the Social Hall and then purchase your tickets to the Housewalk in the Lounge. Homemade cookies and cider will be on the menu as you plan your drive through The Galena Territory to see five beautifully decorated homes.

Artist Animation in Living Windows Saturday, December 8, 4 – 7 pm

The Center's studio artists Chris Warner and Karen Wilson will be featured in Galena's annual Living Windows event in two windows at 217 S. Main Street on December 8 from 4-7 pm. Chris will be painting on canvas and Karen will be embroidering. Refreshments will be offered to visitors by Patricia Lehnhardt. Stop by and enjoy Galena's Night of Luminaria & Living Windows as the Center for the Arts presents artist animation at this holiday celebration!

December Table Reading

Greetings* , by Tom Dudzick

Tuesday, December 11, 7 pm

suggested donation $8

A warm-hearted holiday comedy that might also bring a tear, Greetings! introduces us to the Gorski family: Andy, his sweet Catholic mother, his sour Catholic father, and his handicapped brother named Mickey. When Andy brings his Jewish Atheist fiancée to meet the folks on Christmas Eve, all his worst fears about family blow-ups are realized. It takes Mickey to heal the family.

The Los Angeles Times wrote: "Greetings ! is a wonderful, wacky look at how cleverly a mixture of Christmas, Hanukkah, and New Age philosophy can--in the right hands--flick on the electricity. Ted Otten, from the Times, describes it as "a warm, hilarious, touching and endearing visit to a family blessed with a miracle." Don't miss it!

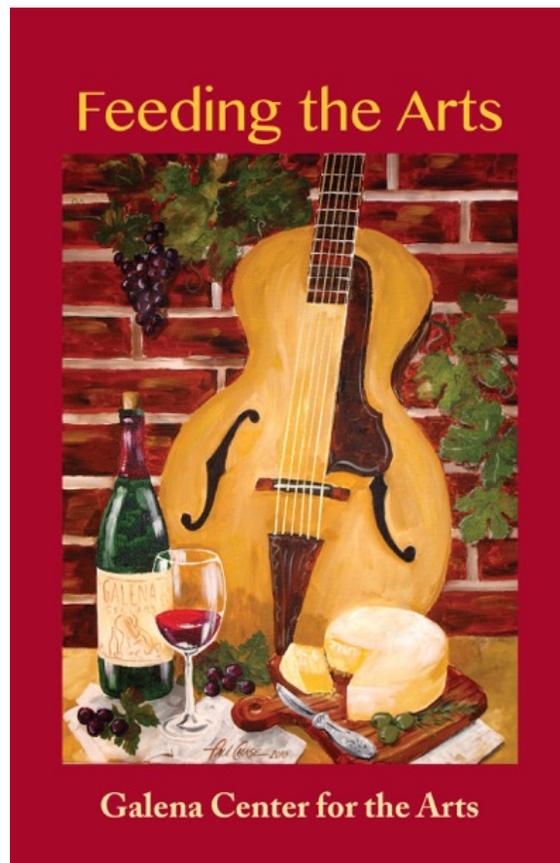

Featuring Tom Resnick, Mimi Resnick, Mark Haman, Ben Jenkins, and Meggie Berning Jenkins.

Feeding the Arts

The Center has always been known for great appetizers and small sweets at our gallery opening receptions, soups and salads at Songwriters Showcase, and sweet treats at theatrical events.

We now have a cookbook you can purchase that includes many of these great recipes. Artists who exhibit in the galleries are featured with full color covers and divider pages, and line drawings incorporated on the recipe pages.

The price is $18 and all profits benefit Galena Center for the Arts. This cookbook is available in the gift shop at the Center and also at Piggly Wiggly. With the holiday season ahead, it makes the perfect gift and resource for all those recipes you will want to serve at your upcoming parties.

The Art of Giving

Holiday and special occasion cards, notecards, and small works of art are available in the gift shop, located next to the Special Exhibit Gallery.

Cozy felted hats, books by local authors, framed and unframed prints, pottery, metal sculptures, and cutting boards are just a few of the items that would make lovely gifts for your loved ones, or for you!

Your purchase of a unique gift helps both the artist and the Center.

Workshops

Figure Drawing

Thursday afternoon

December 6, 13, and 20, 1:30 - 3:30 pm

Figure Drawing will take a winter break starting after December 20 through the end of February. The Spring sessions will start March 7.

Come join the fun. Drawing the human figure can be a very serious endeavor, and yet this group of artists always come up to the gallery from a session chatting and chuckling about how much they have enjoyed the experience. Maybe it's all that pencil scratching heard by the models that releases the giggles when it's over.

Bring your own drawing materials and we'll provide the models. $10 per session.

Embroidery Circle

Wednesday, 1 - 3 pm

(no meeting on December 26 or January 2)

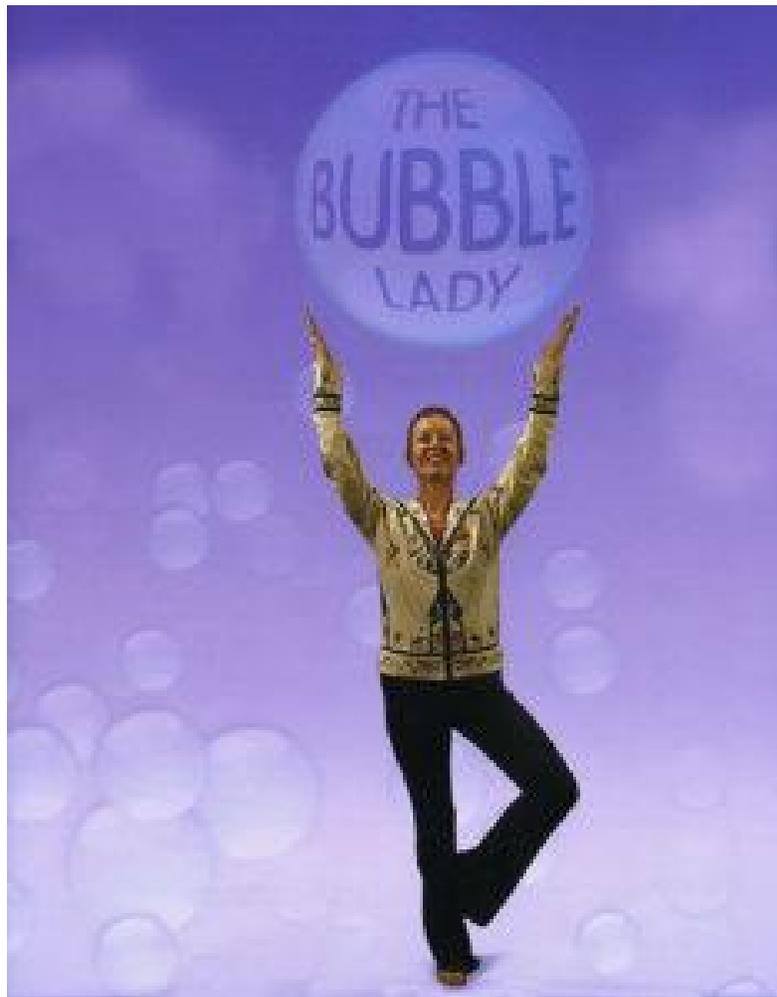

Our weekly Embroidery Circle members have been finishing gifts and projects for the fall holidays. We will be meeting throughout the winter, so please join us if you would like to learn more about traditional hand embroidery. This group is open to all levels of hand embroiderers, including first-time stitchers!

Volunteer of the Month - Cathy Harms

The Art Center's very popular radio shows--most recently "Yes Virginia, There is a Santa Claus"--are a delight, showcasing the talents and work of all the on-stage performers. But the shows would not be possible without the devotion and hard work of the director and all the other behind-the-scenes folk. One of these dedicated workers is Cathy Harms.

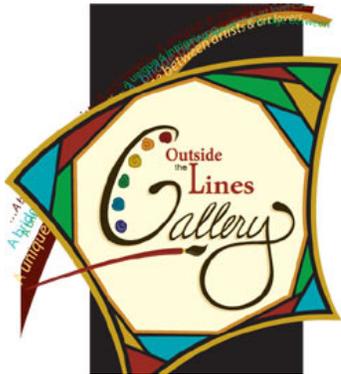

Cathy has worked on Christmas shows and the last "Thin Man," coordinating props and sound effects; furthermore, with "Yes Virginia," she assumed all the duties of stage manager as well. Among other jobs, these include keeping track of blocking, helping find costume pieces, and cuing the actors when to come on stage. Assistant Director Jenni Ackerman says, "Working with Cathy is a delight. She quietly steps in and assumes responsibility wherever it is needed—the ideal stage manager!"

Not that being around a stage is new for Cathy. She started out as a musician, playing the flute in elementary school and high school, then took it up again in 1990 when a flute player was needed in a quartet. She has continued playing, occasionally in church, and in Galena's annual Christmas concerts. Then, in 2001, she mentioned to husband Dan that she would like to play the fiddle. To her surprise and joy, he bought her a violin for Christmas. After taking some lessons, she became a regular in the Dubuque Community String Orchestra.

Along with being a musician, Cathy is known for her acting ability. Her segue into theater began when she took ARC lessons in modern dance and ballet from 1976 to 1980. In 1988, when Carole Sullivan asked her to dance in a tribute to George Gershwin, Cathy discovered that she loved being on stage. Going into acting was a natural step. She performed with Main Street Players, and was their business manager for ten years beginning in 1995. She has portrayed characters in Galena's annual Cemetery Walk, most recently Mrs. Bertha Moser Stryker. With the Women of Courage and Commitment, she joined "Tea with the Duchess" as Susan Hempstead Gratiot, and for the Center for the Arts' October Table Reading, she took the part of Molly in "Old Love."

Cathy seems to delight in all her various activities, on stage and off. We are lucky to have her as such an inspiring contributor to Galena and to the Center.

Outside the Lines Art Gallery

Congratulations to Connie Twining and Stormy Mochal, owners of Outside the Lines Art Gallery, on celebrating fifteen years of selling art in the Tri-States. The mission of Outside the Lines is to offer high quality handmade items at affordable prices. Selling art is not easy, and we especially appreciate all they have done for regional artists, as well as their support for the Galena Center for the Arts.
